WAG meets Sept—June at
AntFarm Café and Bakery
39140 Proctor Blvd
Sandy, OR 97055

WAG DOUBLE EVENT! January 26 is both our monthly members meeting AND the reception for the Reflections show → at the Sandy Actors Theatre. Since the reception should be over by 7:30 and the hands-on activities at the members meeting will continue until about 8:30, it should be possible to attend both.

Brusho

Our January members meeting will feature Ward Stroud, a representative from Cheap Joe's, talking about and demonstrating a fun new product called "Brusho". We will get to try it ourselves, so come dressed to paint and feel free to bring friends!

Dues are Due

Membership dues for 2017 should be paid by the January members meeting. It's $15 for individual, $20 for family. Dues may be paid in cash or check at the meeting, or mailed to the Guild's post office box:

A Brief History of Paint

Research by Lea Topliff--Edited by Dawнна Pearson

Paint Throughout History

Since the time of the Renaissance, oil paints, primarily linseed oil, have been the most common kind of paints for fine art applications; oil paint is still common today. However, in the 20th century, water-based paints, including watercolors and acrylic paints, became very popular with the development of acrylic and other latex paints. Milk paints (also called casein), where the medium is derived from the natural emulsion that is milk, were popular in the 19th century and are still available today. Egg tempera (where the medium is an emulsion of raw egg yolk mixed with oil) is still in use as well, as are encaustic wax-based paints. Gouache is a variety of opaque watercolor that was also used in the Middle Ages and Renaissance for manuscript illuminations. The pigment was often made from ground semiprecious stones such as lapis lazuli and the binder made from either gum arabic or egg white. Gouache, also known as 'designer color' or 'body color' is commercially available today. Poster paint has been used primarily in the creation of student works, or by children.

Pigment and Filler

Pigments are granular solids incorporated in the paint to contribute color. They can be natural, like clay or mica, or synthetic like precipitated calcium carbonate. Some paints contain dyes instead of or in combination with pigments. Hiding pigments, such as phthalo blue and red iron oxide, also protect the substrate from the harmful effects of ultraviolet light.

Some pigments are toxic, such as the lead pigments that are used in lead paint. Paint manufacturers began replacing white lead pigments with titanium white (titanium dioxide), before lead was banned in paint for residential use in 1978.

Some paints contain fillers. Fillers are a special type of pigment: granular solids incorporated to thicken the film, impart toughness, texture, give the paint special properties, or to reduce the cost of the paint by increasing its volume. Fillers are usually cheap and inert materials, such as diatomaceous earth or lime.

Additives

Paint can have a wide variety of additives to modify surface tension, improve flow properties, improve the finished appearance, increase wet edge, improve pigment stability, etc....Continued next month
